At last Congress has openly voted to $5,000 to $7,500 per year. Doubtless the purpose and its provisions. present rate is insufficient, on account of the acknowledged higher cost of living. If our legislators are to be paid at all, they should be paid adequately. Doubtless, too, the public, when it understands the situation, will agree that the advance is justified. It may object, though, and with excellent reason, to the pusillanimous action of the House in at first overthrowing the proposal for the 50 per cent raise by an aye and no vote, and then. after it found that the Senate would not citating the defeated amendment by a vote of which no record was taken.
